STILL NO BASIS FOR SLEUTHS ON WHICH TO WORK

AND CLEVELAND DETECTIVES ARE STILL BAFLED IN THE CLEVELAND CASE.

WIDOW IS STILL GUARDED

Finding of a Woman's Handkerchief
in the Front Yard May Furnish Clue.

Cleveland, Sept. 7.—Detectives
Roger O'Mara of Pittsburg is today
assisting Chief of Police Stamberger
in his efforts to unravel the Phillips murder mystery. He went over the house with other detectives, made a call on John D. Rockefeller, which he said was purely social, and spent the balance of the day in conference with the officials. He is supposed to be working for some insurance company, which holds a policy on Phillips. The only other startling development was that a chemical analysis of the spot found on the landing proved it was not blood. According to the testimony, Phillips lay on the landing after the shooting. The detectives are puzzled, as they believe he could not have lain there without leaving a stain. This afternoon Mrs.
Phillips' physician said she was much improved.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 7.—Five days
have elapsed since the life of J. J.
Phillips was ended by shooting, and the police are baffled. The mystery surrounding the case is as deep as ever. The authorities have failed to find any motive for the murder. The revolver from which the fatal bullet was fired has not been found. There is no tangible basis on which the detectives can work. Mrs. Phillips, the morning of the tragedy, insisted burglars had shot her husband. The suicide theory has not been established.
Judge W. B. Neff, chief counsel for Mrs. Phillips, declares emphatically the state has absolutely failed to obtain evidence that in any way connects her with the crime. He will ask for her release at the preliminary hearing.

Detective Goldsmith, Assistant Prosecutor Mooney and Chief Stamberger believe the finding of a woman's handkerchief the morning of the tragedy
in the front yard of the Phillips residence is an important clue. Mrs. Phillips, although confined to her home by illness, is still kept under a guard, a woman detective remaining on the inside of the house and a patrolman remaining in front of the residence.

SECRETARY TAFT IN THE NORTHWEST

Portland, Ore., Sept. 7.—Secretary Taft and his party, en route to the Philippines, spent the day in Portland
as guests of Theodore B. Wilcox, president of the Oregon Development league. This is Mr. Taft's first visit to the Pacific northwest. He took breakfast at the home of Mr. Wilcox and later went to the Vancouver Barracks, where he was the guest of General Greely. At a luncheon at a Portland hotel Mr. Taft said that he is firmly convinced that the country is tired of the plethora of millionaires
and of their influence, and that it has been demonstrated that the business of the nation should be run on the principle of special privileges to none, be he rich or poor. That, he said, had been the principle of the present administration, and it would be with the Republican administrations to come.

WRONG TWIN

Said to Have Been Married by Complainant in Divorce Suit.

Paris, Ill., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Ada Thomas of Chrisman, Edgar county, complainant in a suit for divorce from Calvin Thomas in the circuit court here, declared that she was tricked into marrying the defendant, who closely resembles his twin brother, Alvin Thomas, and that she did not discover the mistake until after the marriage ceremony. After a courtship lasting three months, Mrs. Thomas says she made an appointment to meet Alvin here and they were to go to Charleston to be married. It developed that Alvin's ardent had cooled and he sent Calvin instead.

FORAKER SOUNDS DEFIANT NOTE IN HIS FIERY SPEECH

Columbus, O., Sept. 7.—In his address at the state fair grounds, Senator Joseph B. Foraker spoke words of defiance to his political enemies.
Among other things the senior senator said: "If you want a senator at Washington who will let somebody else do his thinking for him, don't send me. I don't want the job. I am being opposed because I disagreed with President Roosevelt, but the secret of the whole trouble is, somebody wants my job, and I am not going to give it to him. I refuse to take my orders from a man outside of Ohio, and I will not take orders except from my constituents. It is not right for our government to stick its nose into everybody's business from one end of the land to the other. It is your duty as Ohioans to talk to me about my political course, but I am not taking orders. If you want somebody to take orders from somebody else,
don't send me back to Washington.
I would rather be my own boss in Ohio
than take orders in Washington."

BURTON IS NOMINATED

Cleveland, Sept. 7.—The Republican city convention today nominated Congressman Theo. E. Burton for mayor, to oppose Tom L. Johnson.
Burton practically dictated the platform and ticket.

The street car fare plank in the Republican city platform declares for an immediate settlement of the traction question on a basis of not less than seven tickets for a quarter,
and Burton to work out the details.

R. R. PRESIDENTS HOLD A MEETING

New York, Sept. 7.—The presidents of several railways held a meeting at a hotel here to discuss the new law under which the railroads have been forced to charge to operating expenses certain items that heretofore had been charged to construction account.
From their hotel one or more of the presidents is said to have had a telephone conversation with President Roosevelt's secretary at Oyster Bay.
It is stated that a number of railroads
are holding back the July statements of their earnings because of the showing which they are compelled to make under this law.

National Bank Statement.
Washington, Sept. 7.—Cincinnati,
Cleveland and Columbus reported to the comptroller of the currency in response to his call, demanding a report showing the conditions of national banks on Aug. 22. Cincinnati shows total resources and liabilities of $99,- 639,016, as compared with Cleveland's
$87,202,750 and Columbus' $31,648,116.
Cincinnati loans and discounts total $55,193,668, against $54,208,524 for Cleveland and $17,187,556 for Columbus. Individual deposits in Cincinnati aggregate $38,390,925; in Cleveland, $34,952,951; in Columbus, $17,610,350.

YOUNG WOMAN SHOT TRADUCER

Who, She Said, Was Attempting to Make Her a "White Slave"—
He Will Die.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Seeking to save herself from the shameful life of a "white slave," Minnie Harrin, a pretty 19 year old girl, shot and probably fatally wounded her alleged trader in a notorious saloon in emulation of Bertha Claiche, the New York "white slave" who shot the man who caused her ruin.

Sidney Harris, 22 years old, the victim of the Chicago girl, who took the unwritten law into her own hands to save her honor, is dying at his home, 1823 Michigan avenue, and the girl is in jail.

The attempted murder startled the inmates of the notorious resort when the young woman rushed into the saloon and shot Harris as he was drinking at a table.

HEAVY DAMAGES GIVEN AGAINST FATHER-IN-LAW

Uniontown, Pa., Sept. 7.—William S. Wirsing was awarded $45,000 damages for injuries said to have been received at the hands of his father-in-law, James R. Smith, a wealthy coal operator. A year ago Wirsing eloped with Smith's daughter. Upon the return of the young couple Smith met Wirsing with a Winchester rifle and shot him in the right arm, shattering
the bone, and it is said rendering it useless for life. Smith is now in the penitentiary serving a five-year sentence for felonious shooting with intent to murder.

A CURIO DEALER HAS A TOOTH OF PRES. ROOSEVELT

New York, Sept. 7.—If President
Roosevelt's famous smile is less evident in the future, the reason will not be hard to find. It is because the secret is out that one of his matchless rows of ivory is false. Robert Jordan, a curio dealer, is ready to prove it. Because, if one of the President's incisors is not false, how can Jordan have the real presidential tooth set in a ring, which occupies a prominent place in his shop window. The tooth truly lies in state. It is set in a woman's ring between two large diamonds, awaiting a purchaser who can afford to pay the price. Jordan's pedigree of the tooth runs: "Given by President Roosevelt to Mrs. Lulu B.
Glover, who died a year ago, willing the President her estate, including a dozen cats. President Roosevelt ordered the estate sold. As a part of the estate the tooth went under the hammer. Jordan was right on the job to buy it."

NEILL AND SMALL CONFER.

New York, Sept. 7.—Chas. P. Neill,
U. S. Commissioner of Labor, and S. J.
Small, president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, spent the morning in a conference at the Fifth avenue Hotel, where Neill is stopping.
Neill denied yesterday that his visit to New York had anything to do with the telegraphers' strike.

MEDIUM FAILED TO MAKE GOOD IN A TEST CASE IN NEW YORK CITY

In the Lunacy Proceeding Brought Against Vanderbilt—Couldn't Read Scaled Letter.

New York, Sept. 7.—Mrs. May S.
Pepper-Vanderbilt, leader of Spiritualists, appeared as a witness again in lunacy proceeding brought against her husband, Edward W. Vanderbilt, by his daughter, Minerva Vanderbilt. Mrs.
Vanderbilt had previously testified that under the control of a spirit,
"Bright Eyes," she was able to read unopened letters and learn secrets unknown to the lay mind. Mrs. Vanderbilt was challenged by counsel for Miss Vanderbilt to read unopened sealed letter which he handed her.
Counsel for Mr. Vanderbilt protested against the question, but Commissioner Ketcham held that it was material for if Mrs. Vanderbilt could read the letter through the aid of the unseen "Bright Eyes" it would clear up all the questions in the case. The letter was handed to the witness. "I can not read it," said Mr. Vanderbilt.
"I am not under the control of 'Bright Eyes' now."

MAIL CARRIERS ELECT OFFICERS

Canton, Sept. 7.—The National Convention of Mail Carriers adjourned
today, after electing an executive board and W. E. Kelly, of Brooklyn,
president; E. A. Gainer, of Muncie, Ind., vice president; E. J. Cantwell, Booklyn, secretary. A. J. Ferris of Youngstown, is on the executive board.
President Holland kept his word and did not run for re-election.

SETTLEMENT IS SWEEPED BY FIRE

Tilton, N. H., Sept. 7.—The Shaker settlement, which was established over 100 years ago, is being swept by fire, which broke out this morning.
Help has been summoned from neighboring places, but there is little hope of saving any of the 40 big wooden buildings which stand on each side of the narrow street.

TWELVE KILLED IN A COLLISION ON ROCK ISLAND

FAST PASSENGER PLUNGES INTO A FREIGHT TRAIN AT NOR-RIS, IOWA.

ENGINE JUMPED THE TRACK

Just as It Was About to Pass the Freight, Which Stood on a Siding.

Waterloo, Ia., Sept. 7.—A northbound Rock Island passenger train left the rails at Norris, Ia., and crashed into a southbound freight train which had taken the siding.
Twelve passengers were killed and
about ten injured, several severely.
All of the dead and injured were in the smoking car, which was immediately behind the baggage and mail cars. The smoking car was completely demolished. The dead and injured were strewn about among the wreckage.

The northbound express was 10 minutes late at Norris siding, a small station three miles north of Cedar Falls, Ia., and there a freight train was waiting the express, which came along at a terrific speed in an effort to make up time. Just as the engine of the passenger was about to pass the freight engine the trucks of the train jumped the tracks and the engine
crashed into the engine of the freight,
wrecking both engines and telescoping
the baggage and mail cars and demolishing the smoking car. The passengers in the two days coaches
following the smoker escaped with only a violent shaking up. Rescuers were immediately at hand to care for the injured and to take the dead from among the wreckage.

Dead: P. B. Oliver, Waterloo, Ia.; Will Goodman, Waterloo; John N.
Watson, Waterloo; C. L. Landphere, Sheel Rosh, Ia.; W. Ray Johnson,
Dike, Ia.; B. C. Christy, Minneapolis;
Levovan Toja, Hammond, Ind.; laborer, name unknown, Hammond,
Id.; three unidentified men.

Today the work of identifying four of the twelve persons killed in the Rock Island wreck is still in progress. At least twelve persons were badly injured, some of whom will die.

WOMAN SUICIDES.

Monroe, Mich., Sept. 7.—While temporarily insane, Mrs. Chas. Smith shot herself and then jumped into a cistern. Her husband came home from work at noon and found their two year old child rolling on the floor playing with a revolver. He instituted a search and found his wife.
She had failed to drown herself, but the bullet wound will prove fatal.

JURY ACQUITTED

CHILD MOTHER WHO THREW
HER BABE INTO LAKE
MICHIGAN.

Wealthy Woman Who Had Known
the Girl Was Uniting in Efforts
in Her Behalf.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—That altruism
abides in the world outside of fiction
is proven in the story of Mary Lapalla who today took up life anew after her acquittal of the charge of murdering her infant daughter, while suffering from "puerperal mania" and Mrs.
Russell Doubleday stands forth in the limelight as a benefactress unselfish, heroic and grand.

Mrs. Doubleday's husband is the western representative of an eastern publishing house bearing his name.
The family formerly employed Mary Lapalla in New York. They knew the girl as honest, upright and hard-working. In Chicago they read of her trouble and Mrs. Doubleday hastened to her relief. She employed attorneys and remained at her girl's side
through the long hours of the trial,
wept at her story of misfortune, a tale of love and passion of broken faith, culminating in the supreme suffering and infanticide.

The jury remained out but an hour
and fifty minutes and late Friday afternoon acquitted the girl, declaring that she was momentarily insane at the time she threw her child into Lake Michigan, but that now she is sane.
As the jurors filed out Mrs. Doubleday shook hands with each one and thanked them for acquitting Mary.
"We could not have returned any other verdict," said the foreman. "We did not know that such a woman as you existed outside of books."

When an eloping couple run away

ANTWERP STRIKE AFFECTS TRADE WITH AMERICA

Antwerp, Sept. 7.—The delay in reaching a settlement of the dock-men's strike is beginning to effect the trade with American ports and each day the situation grows worse. The loss to general trade so far has been alarming and industries throughout the country will be seriously hampered until the difficulty is solved.
The Maritime federation is most reluctant to create a precedent by negotiating with a socialist organization.
The strike fund has just received an addition of $52,000 and this taken in connection with the attitude of the Federation, indicates that the struggle will be protracted.

HUSBAND AND WIFE MURDERED WHILE LYING IN THEIR BED

Chicago, Sept. 7.—A double tragedy
which the police are investigating,
occurred today in Evanston, Ill.
Frederick M. Fish being found dead in bed, with her head crushed, and by her side lay her husband, a wealthy retired broker with his throat cut and gasping for breath as the blood poured from his wound.

The servants discovered the tragedy
when they went to awaken the couple
in their home in one of the exclusive Evanston's most fashionable streets.
Repeated knocking at the door brought
no response and the servants, becoming alarmed, forced their way into the room and saw blood saturated clothing. Neighbors were summoned and the Evanston police notified. Nearby physicians tried in vain to revive Mrs.
Fish.

Fish was removed to a hospital, but
the attendants say he will probably die.
Friends of the couple could give no reason why the couple should have sought their own deaths, as their lives had always been happy. Neighbors are inclined to think burglars committed the crimes. A blood-stained meat cleaver was found on the floor near the bed.

SETTLEMENT

OF TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE IS LIKELY SAY THE UNION'S OFFICERS.

Companies Say That Strike is Over
as Far as They Are Concerned.

New York, Sept. 7.—Officers of the telegraphers' union state that important developments in the telegraph strike may be expected next Tuesday,
when the directors of the Western Union hold their regular quarterly meeting. They say nearly 200 strikers have obtained other positions.
Officials of both telegraph companies declare that the strike is over so far as the companies are concerned.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—The Postal Tel-graph began suit against the Commercial Telegraphers' union of America on the grounds that the latter had refused to pay for transmission of messages. According to officials of the telegraph company no answer was made when bills for the telegrams were presented to the union. Upon request they were told the union declined to make payment unless the telegraph company would certify that the messages had reached their destination by sending a "chaser" after every message. The company refused.
The messages in question were filed with the company since the strike began. The case was set for Sept. 11.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Warrants were served out for the arrest of Samuel S.
Ulrich and R. N. Nichols, striking members of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, on the charge of intimidation. George S. Davis, an operator in the employ of the Postal Telegraph company, was the complainant.

DEFY DEATH

In Mad Speed Contest in Motor Cars
at Morris Park Race Track in New York.

Morris Park Race Track, N. Y., Sept. 7.—A blackish brown, ribbon-tailed saucer-shaped track, oil soaked to keep down the slightest resemblance to dust, around which are speeding
seven high powered racing automobiles whose drivers, defiant of all risk, keep their controllers at the last notch is the New York sport loving public's mecca today. Records are going, and although human lives are in jeopardy men and women vie with each other in manifestations of approval.

PRESIDENT WILL HUNT WILD BOAR WITH JAVELINS

Houston, Tex., Sept. 7.—Reports from San Antonio state that a wild boar hunt with javelins for weapons
instead of rifles is being planned for President Roosevelt's participation.
An experimental hunt with javelins will shortly be made in the district south of San Antonio. Several of President Roosevelt's acquaintances expect to take part in this hunt, and they are authority for the statement that if the sport with the primitive weapons proves good the president has promised to join in a hunt during his coming southern and western trip.

TENEMENT COLLAPSED.

Indianapolis, Sept. 7.—A tenement
house at Illinois and South streets,
collapsed at noon, burying a dozen persons in the ruins. The fire department is working heroically to remove the injured.

HARD AT WORK ON HIS MESSAGE

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 7.—President Roosevelt will devote the remainder of his summer vacation to work
on his annual message to congress and the completion of the series of speeches he is to deliver during his trip through the west and south. Secretary Loeb said that visitors to Sag-amore Hill would be decidedly scarce
from now on.

Additional Indictments.
Jamestown, N. Y., Sept. 7.—The federal grand jury returned an additional indictment against the Pennsylvania
ad New York Central roads, the Standard Oil company, and the Vacuum Oil company of Rochester, N. Y.
Each indictment contains 58 counts.

"JAMIE" FOUND AT MOURNER'S BENCH AT BIG REVIVAL

New York, Sept. 7.—Miss Helen Gould was the principal enthusiast
in rejoicing at a "gospel rally," over the professed repentance of a "sinner." She even led in the "amen's" which greeted his announcement of a determination to lead a "new life."

The meeting was being held in Abigdon Square, under the auspices of the Evangelical committee to which Miss Gould recently gave $10,000. Her arrival was unexpected, but aroused the gathering to a great pitch of enthusiasm. Dr.
Wiley, an Iowa preacher, was telling the story of an Iowa mother whose son James had run away fourteen years ago, who every night placed a lamp in the window and went to the door and called for her boy to return. "This poor mother begged me," he said, "wherever I went to tell this story and beg her James. If he was within the sound of my voice,
to return home, but I have another"
—he was interrupted by Dr. Ely, who suddenly shouted: "Jamie is here! Jamie is found!"

Sure enough, down at the mourners bench was a red-headed young man, who announced he was
"Jamie," and said he was going home to comfort his mother in her old age.

NO RECOLLECTION OF AWFUL CRIME

William Miller Who Killed His Wife's Paramour, Has Recovered
His Reason at Lebanon.

Franklin, O., Sept. 7.—Wm. Miller, who on Labor day, shot and killed Joe Little, the man who eloped to Springfield O., with Miller's wife, and who has been apparently insane ever since, has regained his reason. He was lying on the stone floor of his cell in the Lebanon jail, when he was soon to move one of his hands over the smooth surface. "Oh, heavens, have they put me in the grave?" he wailed, and his hands moved a little further, when he touched the iron bar. Then he opened his eyes and arose. He asked where he was, and when informed that he had murdered Little he exclaimed that he had no recollection of the crime.

TWO COUNTRIES ARE TO GARRISON MOROCCAN PORTS

FRANCE AND SPAIN REACH AN AGREEMENT TO THIS EFFECT.

PROTECTION OF FOREIGNERS

The Safety of Whom Moroccan Officials Are Not Able to Guarantee.

Paris, Sept. 7.—France and Spain
have agreed to occupy Morocco and garrison the ports until Morocco can guarantee the safety of the lives and property of foreigners living in them.
Under the terms of the Algeiras convention of 1806 these two nations are required to perform such police functions and, while it is announced that the occupation will last only so long as the present anarchy prevails,
it is generally believed that it will be permanent and that it marks the first step of the absorption of Morocco by the big European powers.

It has been agreed that France will occupy Mazagan, Mogador, Safi and Rabat. Spain will take possession of El Arnish and Teutian, and both nations will jointly police Casablanca and Tangier.

This joint agreement was particularly dictated by the announcement of the Moroccan war minister, El Gabbas, that his government was no longer able to protect the foreigners in Morocco.
In their excited and belligerent state
it is feared that the occupation of the proposed ports will further inflame
the Moorish fanatics and that their pacification will be rendered doubly difficult, if not impossible. For this reason a long occupation of Morocco
is anticipated.

Spanish Minister Talks.

Paris, Sept. 7.—A dispatch from Madrid says that Premier Maura has expressed a desire to co-operate with France in the organization of the international police under the new conditions. The premier is quoted as adding: "Spain and the other powers signatory of the Algeiras convention understand that events have sensibly modified the situation as considered at Algeiras in 1906." The correspondent says that the opinion is gaining ground in Spain that the Moors
should be punished, as otherwise European prestige in Morocco will suffer.
There are several Spanish warships
at Cadiz ready to sail for Morocco and enforce the new policy of the powers.

Spain and Morocco.

Madrid, Sept. 7.—The Globo reiterates that discord exists between King Alfonso and Premier Maura regarding Spain's Moroccan policy. The paper adds: "Senator Maura intends to ask the king whether he has confidence in the ministry, which involves the possibility of a ministerial crisis, which would put the Liberals in power. If the sentiment in favor of intervention in Morocco was stronger in Spain the government would dispatch 4,000 men and a number of warships to Morocco."

MRS. CARTER

Acquitted of Having Received Part of the Money Which Was Stolen
by C. B. Runyan.

New York, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Laura M.
Carter, the woman who has been on trial charged with receiving $5,000 of the $94,000 stolen by Chester B. Runyan from the Windsor Trust company, is a free woman. The jury which heard the case tried before Judge Whitman brought in a verdict of not guilty after a deliberation of a little over half an hour. Mrs. Carter had no sooner been discharged than she intimated that she would fight for the reward of nearly $8,000 offered for Runyan's arrest.

MANIFESTO

Issued by the Russian Constitutional Democrats.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 7.—The preliminary parliamentary elections in Moscow and Tver provinces will take place Sept. 15, and in the other provinces soon after. The Constitutional Democrats have issued a manifesto setting forth the party's claims for popular support, repeating the old arguments and declaring that "throughout a flagrant violation of the fundamental laws the government July 16 gave the electoral power into the hands of a handful of wealthy landlords." The manifesto further expresses confidence that the government's plans will miscarry, but in view of the possibility of a temporary governmental success, the Constitutional Democrats appeal to the rich merchants and landlords to resist the government's efforts to ensnare them.

AMUSEMENTS

"AT CRIPPLE CREEK"

E. J. Carpenter's "At Cripple Creek," which will be presented at the Auditorium Friday night is the most startling novelty to be seen here this season. It is a real thriller, several types new to the stage are introduced and clever character drawing is one of the most commendable features in the play. "At Cripple Creek" is supplied with great mechanical effects and effective climaxes are produced scenery, yet the investiture of the drama is subservient to the acting, with happy results.

INSTITUTE CLOSED SUCCESSFUL WEEK

And City Teachers Have Been Greatly Benefitted by the Sessions. Closing Addresses.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Mr. Van Cleave delightfully closed his week's work with the reading of a sketch from Ruth McEnery Stuart's "Sonny." The story fitted well with the sentiment of the hour, besides being, as the reader expressed it, fine pedagogy. This last hour only served to strengthen the good impression that Mr. Van Cleave's thorough work and pleasing personality have made during the week.

Miss Ferris' last work was equally pleasant. She, too, has proved herself in her chosen field of primary work one of the ablest institute instructors who has ever worked in Newark. In fact, all the work for the week, including that of the third lecturer, Mrs. Vail, has been exceedingly well chosen and helpful.

Miss Ferris' afternoon work added to her laurels as a teacher, an enviable reputation as a reader. Sweeping every chord from laughter to pathos, she revealed the sympathetic touch which has made her so much the friends of the children.

Judge E. M. P. Brister being present, was asked to speak on any subject he might choose, and responded with a fifteen minutes' address on the teacher's work, revealing a sympathetic attitude, as well as a clear knowledge of conditions. From this introductory preface he went on to speak of the functions of the juvenile court, in which he is, of course, particularly interested.

Traut Officer Jones was then asked to speak for five minutes, and seized the opportunity to second every plea made by Judge Brister for the juvenile court.

Mr. M. R. Scott and Mr. D. M. Keller, by invitation, briefly addressed the audience on similar subjects.

MARVELOUS INVENTION CURES WEAK MEN

Patent Granted by the United States Government.

A new and scientific appliance invented by L. B. Hawley, M.D., will produce full manly power at first application. The effects are immediate and startling to a high degree. Develops, strengthens and cures lost vigor. Positively no failures. Physicists endorse and use it in their practice. If you are the least skeptical as to the value of this remarkable treatment, send for illustrated circulars, take them to your family physician and get his opinion. This is the first time any one has requested you to take his circulars to your family physician. Why? Simply because he knows your physician will not recommend his treatment. Not so with this appliance. Your doctor will immediately grasp the idea, and when he does, he will recommend it. Nothing like it has ever been sold before. It works the same on every individual. Send to-day for free descriptive circular of this wonderful instrument. The moment you see it you will realize its possibilities. No C. O. D. or free trial schemes to catch the unwary. This is a plain business proposition that will appeal to you as the greatest opportunity ever offered to those who are weak. Address L. B. Hawley, M.D., 1291 Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y.

TIME IS THE TEST.

The Testimony of Newark People Stand the Test.
The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Newark people appreciate merit, and many months ago local citizens publicly endorse Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? A cure that lasts is the kind that every sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

F. Lisey, commission merchant, of 39 South Fourth street, Newark, O., says:
"I have had no occasion to use any kidney medicine since 1896, and therefore think more than ever of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me eight years ago, and I made a statement for publication at that time recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. This statement I will repeat for the benefit of other sufferers from kidney troubles."

"For several years I was distressed and annoyed with pain in the back just over the kidneys, and whenever I stooped or tried to lift anything the trouble became acute. Treatment had failed to bring me relief and at last I laid aside the prescriptions I had been using and went to Crayton's drug store for a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. The use of this remedy proved so effective that my back has been sound ever since I used Doan's Kidney Pills eight years ago. I therefore have no hesitation in recommending them to others."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Mayor McKinley has received the following self explanatory letter containing timely information concerning the dedication of the beautiful national McKinley memorial from A. R. Turbull, mayor of Canton.

Mayor's Office, Canton, O.

To the Honorable Mayor of the City of Newark:

It being finally settled that the magnificent McKinley Memorial, being erected by the contributions of over a million of the people of America and other civilized nations of the world, will be completed before the time set for the dedication on September 30, without doubt, on behalf of the citizens of Canton, I cordially invite you and your fellow citizens to be present on that occasion.

The dedicatory address will be delivered by President Roosevelt and there will be present with him as guests of the National McKinley Memorial Association and the city of Canton, Members of the Cabinet, Justices of the United States Supreme Court, Members of both Houses of Congress, Foreign Ambassadors and Diplomats, and Governor Harris and other officials of this and other States.

The President will reach Canton at 10-11 o'clock, by the Pennsylvania lines, September 30. The parade will move promptly at 11 o'clock and will be reviewed by President Roosevelt and other distinguished visitors from a stand on the public square.

The program at the monument will begin at 2 o'clock, with an address by Associate Justice William R. Day, of the United States Supreme court, president of the National McKinley Memorial Association, prefatory to the oration of President Roosevelt.

There will be inspiring music by a great choir, and bands of great renown.

The citizens of Canton are making every effort to entertain a large gathering. With large and splendid hotel facilities, several trunk line railroad systems and numerous interurban lines, intending visitors to the city will find Canton not only easy of access, but also ready to provide abundant means of entertainment.

Having received many inquiries, I have made this statement for the information of the general public. I will esteem it a favor if upon receipt of this, you will make publication of same in your city papers.

Very respectfully yours,
A. R. TURBULL,
Mayor of the City of Canton, Ohio.

CLOTHES TALK

There are two classes of men in this town—those who know all about our good clothes and those who have never been here.

Men Who Know!

Those who know—know that they have never had better clothes than they buy here. Never had better fitting, more comfortable, stylish or more fairly priced clothes. They know that when they are ready for a Fall Suit, they will come directly here for it. These men know where the best clothes come from.

Men Who Don't Know!

To the other class belong those busy mortals who haven't time to investigate—so they go to the exclusive tailor and pay dearly for their lack of time, or content themselves with buying "Average Ready to Wear Clothing" and so go poorly dressed half their days.

Reader!

If you are not already in the class of "The Men Who Know," you'll do well to join it at once.

WOMAN BALKED AND NO WEDDING AT AUDITORIUM

A large audience at the Auditorium was disappointed Friday night when James Dwar and Anna Secord, who were to be married from the stage failed to show up. Every thing was in readiness for the ceremony, the management had supplied the license, "Squire Lake was on hand to tie the knot, all preparations for the marriage had been made behind the curtain, and the groom-to-be had gotten the bride to be as far as the door, then she balked, and it was a case of "no wedding bells for him," that night at least.

Many well known merchants contributed presents, among them being Mrs. Annie Hoover, Besanceney & Henneberger, Dan L. Jones, Christian & Sons, The Parish Co., Great Western, Fields the barber and the Lippincott Livery company. The cab that would have taken the happy couple to their home was driven on the stage and was in full view of the audience, while Mr. Leseur of the company was apologizing for the non-appearance of the couple.

The play, "How Hearts are Broken," was good. The work of Robert Leseur, as "Lucius Parsons," Arthur Gregory as "Blind Bill," Sam Mylie as "Timothy Tucks," and Helen Rapoport as "Jessamine Windfield," being especially good. "Rastus," a well known colored man, the only amateur on the stage, was good and was given several curtain calls for his act. "Circus Day," a comedy, will be presented tonight.

JEW OF NEWARK WILL CELEBRATE THEIR NEW YEAR

WITH APPROPRIATE AND ELABORATE CEREMONIES AT TAYLOR HALL.

Arrangements Have Been Made for the Attendance of Prominent Eastern Rabbi.

The Jewish New Year will be celebrated by the Jewish people of Newark with services at Taylor Hall, beginning Sunday evening. There will be services also on Monday and Tuesday mornings. A regular ordained rabbi will be here from the east to take charge of the services. On Monday, September 16, is the day of atonement. On this day occurs a fast for twenty-four hours, and is observed by all Jews throughout the civilized world.

In the Jewish calendar this will begin the year 5668.

One of the beautiful features of the New Year observance is the blowing of the shofar, or ram's horn. The blowing of the shofar requires considerable skill, so as to sound the proper notes.

The services will be of a solemn character, for Rosh Hashanah is a festival of grave import. The Orthodox Hebrews continue the celebration until the next day, but the Reformed Jews observe only the one day. Many of the stores owned by the Orthodox Hebrews will be closed next Monday.

Three books of account are opened wherein the fate of the wicked, the righteous and those not utterly bad are recorded. The names of the righteous are at once recorded and they are sealed "to live"; those of the intermediary class have ten days—until Yom Kippur—to atone for their sins. The wicked are "blotted" out of the book of the living according to Psalms liix:28.

A festival meal is an important feature of the home celebration of the holiday. The table is supplied with grapes, other fruit and honey. After the benediction of "Ha Chamoska," bread is dipped in honey, when the following is recited: "May it please the Lord, our God, and God of our fathers, to renew for us a good and sweet year."

"Schalchomonos," or presents, pass between friends and neighbors. The Jews greet one another on New Year's eve with "La schona tavo ti kasova," which interpreted, means "Mayest thou be inscribed for a good year."

GOVERNOR HARRIS THROUGH NEWARK

Quite a number of Newark people were at the Baltimore & Ohio depot Saturday noon to see Governor A. L. Harris and his staff and representatives of the Ohio Society, Sons of the American Revolution, pass through the city on their way to the Jamestown exposition, where the governor, of course, will play a prominent part on Ohio day, Wednesday. Judge E. M. P. Brister, Hon. Edward Kibler, and R. M. Davidson were the delegates selected by the State society S. A. R., to accompany the governor and his staff on the trip, but none of them went.

WOMEN TALK TO WOMEN About Pe-ru-na.

MRS. MCGOUGH. Depressed Feeling.

Mrs. M. McGough, 219 W. 33rd street, New York, N. Y., writes:

"I gladly add my mite of praise to Peruna for what it has done for me. Two years ago a depressed feeling took hold of me. My back and sides ached continually. My stomach got out of order so that at times I could not hold a glass of cold water. I didn't like to eat, afraid that my stomach would get sick. I have been using Peruna for the three past months and now I feel as well as I ever did. My stomach is as strong as ever and my nervous troubles have disappeared. I keep recommending Peruna to my friends who are troubled as I was, and I have been thanked for doing so."

MRS. MOOERS.

Mrs. Wilda Mooers, R. F. D. 1, Lents, Ore., member Order of Washington, writes:

"For the past four years I was a wretched woman suffering with troubles peculiar to my sex, causing severe backache and bearing down pains and leaving me so weak and weary that it was only with difficulty that I was able to attend to my household duties. I used different remedies and injections, but found no relief until I had tried Peruna. Within two weeks there was a complete change for the better and in less than three months I was a well and happy woman and all the praise is due to Peruna."

MRS. NELSON.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 609 N. 5th Ave., Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"As Peruna has done me a world of good, I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eye of some woman who has suffered as I did. For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going."

"A good friend advised me to use Peruna and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."

The above testimonials represent actual experience of every-day life. They are the truthful utterances of women who have been ill and have found a reliable remedy in Peruna. It means a great deal to the women of America who have at hand a remedy capable of performing such cures. Nervousness, backache, dyspepsia, headache, melancholy, bearing down pains. All these and a host of other symptoms are relieved by Peruna. At least this is what the women say. They have no object in saying such things, except to render truthful testimony to their suffering sisters. The reader will note by reading these testimonials that in most cases other remedies were tried, doctors were consulted, and finally Peruna came to their rescue and made them well again. Peruna is making such cures every day. It is the testimony of the people that has made Peruna so justly famous.

Suffered Thirteen Years.

Mrs. Anna Menden, Hollygrove, Ark., writes:

"I suffered with female troubles for thirteen years. I saw an advertisement of your Peruna and bought one bottle and used it and I had taken it all I could get out of bed and walk about. After taking three bottles I was as well and hearty as ever and gained in flesh. I would not be without it."

Headache and Deafness.

Mrs. Mary E. Sampson, Londonderry, N. H., writes:

"I had terrible headaches, both ears run and I was nervous all the time, was deaf in one ear for thirty years. I took six bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin, and am happy to say that it is the best medicine that I ever heard of. I am not so nervous, my appetite is good, everything I eat agrees with me, and I am feeling better in every way."

A Severe Cold.

Miss Marie Calvin, 927 Main street, Cincinnati, Ohio, writes:

"I caught a cold coming home from an evening party and as I did not pay particular attention to it, I quickly became worse and found myself in a serious condition. I took Peruna and it brought me immediate relief. Within a week I was cured and now whenever I feel badly Peruna will set things right."

Trimmed twice—the first time after a hard struggle and in the second game routed in almost the first skirmish—Newark tumbled out of first place Friday afternoon, Akron taking the lead in the pennant fight, though the Akronites were idle.

Louis Schettler pitched the Champs to victory in the first fray, Newark going down 4 to 2, and the second game was won with Sammy Smith on the rubber. Joe Stoup and Joe Locke were Newark's heavies. In each game the fourth was the Champs' inning and three base hits in the fourth rounds settled the Molders' fate. Dick Nallin and Harry Ostdek tripped in the fourth of the first game and in the second one Sam Havel put on the finishing uncton by a three bagger between middle and left.

Newark batted hard in the first game, but in the second the downstaters were easy. Three runs in the fourth of the opening game took some of the Molders' vim. From then on they were less aggressive. The visitors hit hardest, but their bingles were scattered. Their fielding was not nearly so good and on the bases the Champs were in their own class. This was true especially in the second game, when the Molders could score only one run on 11 hits. Sammy Smith was effective in pinches and there was a lot of good fast fielding when a hit would have meant something. Like the Deacon's one horse chaise, the Molders went to pieces all over in the second fray.

Louis Schettler started as he generally does when there is a good game up his sleeve, by passing the first man up. Lefty Snyder fanned after missing two attempts to lay the ball down. Abbott was headed by Osse to Starr. Newark drew first blood. Smith, whose hitting was terrific, securing three singles and a double, started the second frame with a two bagger. Pearce put him to third and on a long foul to Dick Nallin, Smith registered, easily beating a throw by Dick.

The Champs evened matters in the third. Curley singled nicely to right. He stole and on a single by Breen came in. Newark was dangerous in the fourth. Smith opened with a single and was put to second by Pearce. Murray drew a pass, but Gygil popped to Servatious and Dowling fanned.

Dick Nallin uncorked the fourth with a triple between center and left. Sam Havel bunted, to work the squeeze play. Stoup threw the ball late to catch Dick. Stoup threw high, the ball going to the stand. Havel went to second on the clunker. Ostdek followed with a triple just out of reach of Snyder and Doc Abbott. Havel scored and on a bad throw by Murray to third, Osse trotted in. From then on it was a losing battle for the down state people, though they rallied in the sixth and scored. Smith singled and Pearce was hit. Murray forced Pearce. Smith going to third and on a single by Gygil he scored. Schettler was easily master of the situation the remainder of the way.

Both sides were in the first battle for all they were worth. There was no careless work either way. The life and coaching were pleasing.

For three innings they raced along neck and neck in the second setto, neither side scoring. Locke was solved for a single by Starr and Breen drew a pass in the first, but Joe settled down nicely and from then until the fourth went well. A dropped fly by Lefty Snyder, after a long chase, started Joe on the decline. Servatious poked out the sky buster and when it came down Servy was on second. Nallin moved him to third. Will Thomas singled, Servy scoring. Sam Havel tripled to mid-center-left, and Ostdek singled. On a throw to the plate Osse went to second and Blount scored him with a pretty single.

Two more runs were added in the fifth. Breen and Servy singled. Servy's hit was a present by Locke and Murray both going after the ball and colliding. The two Molders rolled on the ground and the ball rolled swiftly away. Dick Nallin sacrificed. Murray was late throwing to the plate to head off Breen, following a grounder by Will Thomas. Sam Havel long-flied to Snyder and Servy beat the ball in. Cam Smith got on to start the sixth by Locke throwing the ball low to first. Blount bunted and beat it out, Cammy going to third from second. On a long fly by Breen to Abbott Li'l Sam tallied.

Doc Abbott scored the Molders' redeeming tally in the eighth. Doc tripled over Nallin and on a single by Snyder came in. Three lightning double plays, in the seventh, eighth and ninth, kept the Molders at bay. Two Molders got on in each of the last three frames, but were nipped in the bud by the telescopes. Cap Starr made one unassisted, assisted on another and Sam Havel, Breen and the Spaniard made the other.

Starr's fielding, a fine catch by Blount and Dowling's batting featured the second struggle.

MOLDERS WERE SHOVED DOWN TO SECOND POSITION

TEAM SOMEWHAT CRIPPLED BY MANAGEMENT TRYING TO SIGN A NEW MAN.

Get in Line and Join the Boosters' Club—Still Have Good Chance for Pennant.

We lost the double header to Youngstown yesterday. We were expecting at least a break even, but it was not to be.

The team has been meeting with poor success since leaving Lancaster Sunday, having lost six straight games.

The Molders got a bad get away at Mansfield Labor Day and Schweitzer being out of the game has weakened the team to a certain extent.

We are not going to offer an apology for the team's work the past week, for we honestly believe that they should have won two, if not three, out of the six. We ought to have broken even with Mansfield and should have won the game at Akron Wednesday. We had it won 3 to 0, but over-confidence and errors did the business. We had seven hits against five in the first game with Youngstown yesterday, but we also had a few errors.

Akron is leading today by the very small margin of one point. Last Saturday we were leading by 38 points. The local fans are uneasy and many have their hammers out doing the little knocking stunt. Quite a few are blaming the management for not securing a good man for the outfield to replace Schweitzer. Did you stop long enough to think that a good man cannot be picked up at a moment's notice? They are always in demand and are hard to find. The moment that the telegram was received in this city stating that Al Schweitzer was out of the game was the moment the local management got busy and started to try and land some one equally as good as the Cheese Man. The wires were kept busy all yesterday trying to sign some one and the chances are that a new outfielder will be signed before night. In time to participate in Monday's game.

Now, another word to some of the dissatisfied fans. We cannot win them all and some clubs must lose occasionally. True, it is tough luck to lose six straight, but it is not the first time it has happened. Take into consideration the wonderful record made by the Molders this season. Stop and consider for a moment how long they have held the lead against several of the highest salaried clubs in the league and then give credit to where it belongs. With the exception of a few short hours Bob Berryhill's boys have retained the lead since June 24. Manager Bob has brought the team up from the bottom to the top and the Molders have attracted the attention of fandom all over the country. Surely they are to be commended for the good work they have done in the past. Even if they should finish no better than second or third they are entitled to all kinds of credit.

Now nothing can be gained by the anvil route. Let's all get together and join the boosters' club for the short time which yet remains before the season closes. Remember that a little encouragement goes a long way with a ball player. Boost, and when the boys return from their long road trip next Saturday they will show their appreciation and do all in their power to try and win the eight games which we have scheduled for the local grounds and which would almost insure the pennant flying over the grand stand at Wehrle park next season.

Lancaster 5, Sharon 2. Sharon, Pa., Sept. 7—Sharon could not solve Justus' delivery yesterday except in one inning and he fanned 12 men, a record here this season. Jimmie pitched good ball but a fluke home run by Humphreys when the ball hit a stone and bounded over Center Fielder Carter's head, gave the visitors enough scores in the first to win. Kerr's fielding and Collins' throw to the plate from right catching Eichberger at the plate were features. Score: R H E. S. 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0—2 6 2. L. 3 0 0 0 2 0 0 0—5 8 1. Batteries—Limeric and Mattison; Justus and Fox. Umpire—Bannon.

New Castle 3, Mansfield 1. New Castle, Pa., Sept. 7—Pitcher Jack Kennedy held Mansfield down to three safe hits yesterday and easily defeated the visitors. A triple and an error in the third gave Mansfield its one tally. Second Baseman Nugent late of the West Penn. League, played and did well. Score: R H E. N. C. 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 1—1 6 2. M. 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0—1 3 4. Batteries—Kennedy and Lauzon; Loyd and Riley. Umpire—Hart. Attendance—250.

HAVAL GOES TO EASTERN LEAGUE

Sam Haval was released by Manser Wright Thursday on account of a prior claim to his services by the Newark, N. J., club of the Eastern League.

Havel, Manager Wright learned, accepted terms of the Eastern League clubs before signing with Champs. Demand for him was made by the Newark club and there was no other course to follow. Hilley will play third base.

AKRON FANS DO NOT APPRECIATE THEIR TEAM

"There isn't enough enthusiasm in Akron about the Akron ball team to ruffle a pan of water," remarked a well known fan at the Akron-Newark game Wednesday afternoon. The crowd was distressingly small and especially considering the climb made by the Tip Tops and what the Wednesday game with Newark meant.

Even the small sized crowd present Wednesday afternoon lost heart the first part of the game and failed to appreciate several good plays made by the local players. It was a small bunch that started rooting at the beginning of the seventh inning, when Akron tied the score, and finally the rest of the crowd took the cue and got busy with their nose machines.

If this afternoon's game fails to draw less than 1500 people after Akron has climbed into second place, decreasing the lead of Newark over the Tip Tops for first place to two and one-half games, it is enough to make the Akron players lose heart and the directors feel disgusted. Thursday's Akron Press.

There were less than 700 present at Thursday's game. Evidently the Akron fans do not appreciate their team. Had the game occurred in this city under the same conditions there would have been from 2,000 to 2,500 spectators present.

HURST TO UMPIRE IN WORLD'S SERIES

"Going to be one of the umpires in the world's series this fall, Tommy?" a fan asked of Umpire Connolly Thursday.

"I hardly think so," replied Tommy. "I presume it will be Tim Hurst for our league and perhaps Bob Emslie for the National."

"O'Day and I worked in the series between Boston and Pittsburgh; Sheridan and O'Day in the Athletic-Giant series, and O'Laughlin and Johnstone last fall in Chicago. So I presume Hurst will be President Johnson's selection this fall."

"I shall be fully content to see the dawn of October 7, when I can take a train for a little place down in Massachusetts, where I'll hear no hisses and no groans and where I'm not a 'robber' and a thief."

UMPIRE GAVE 248 DECISIONS

Just to get an idea of the work accomplished by the umpire, a San Francisco fan who likes to delve into figures took along a clocking machine to the ball ground and kept tab on the number of decisions the umpire gave throughout the game. All told there were 248. These include strikes and ball, foul balls and decisions at the bases and plate. The last time the figures were kept the man who did so found that the umpire had rendered 315 decisions in a ten inning game.

BASEBALL BUGS MAKE FREAK BET

Philadelphia, Sept. 7—The race for the American league baseball pennant has resulted in a unique bet between Joseph Megary and Richard Burkhardt, members of the police force at Landdowne, Pa. The bet is as follows:

If the Athletics win the pennant Burkhardt is to shave off his mustache and allow a goatee of not more than 40 hairs to grow on his chin, the goatee to be not less than four inches long and dyed a brilliant red.

If the Athletics lose Megary is to allow his whiskers to grow out just below the ears about four inches and to be dyed an emerald green.

MELANGE OF SPORT.

Youngstown put the bug on us.

Out of twenty games played with Youngstown we won 9 and lost 11.

The Newark lads made four errors in Wednesday's game, four in Thursday's game and four in each game of the double header yesterday. Four must be the Molders' hoodoo.

Youngstown secured five hits off Stoup in the first game, while Newark scored seven off Schettler.

Six straight to the bad. We'll have to hurry if we want to be in at the killing.

In the second game at Youngstown yesterday Sammy Havel drew a triple, made two put outs and four assists.

Smith played right field for the Molders yesterday while Dowling played short, Wrat covering third sack. In the first game Smith was at bat four times and made a 1,900 batting average, hitting for four safeties. In the second game he was at bat three times, did not secure a hit and did not have a fielding chance.

Pete Porter the New Castle lawyer, who has been playing the second cushion during the enforced absence from the game of Cupid Pinkney, has played his last game with the Nocks, and after two weeks' vacation, will resume his law practice.

A general impression prevails among the fans in Youngstown that Outfielder Nallin will be the captain of next year's team which means manager, as Wright rules in name only. The idea seems to take with Youngstown people, too.

First Baseman Tiffany, who has been handling the initial corner for the Connelville team of the West Penn league has accepted Manager Billy Smith's terms and will occupy the same position for the Nocks. Tiffany is said to be an excellent fielder and a high class, hitter. Schlatter has played for his release for months but Smith seems determined to retain him although Slats swears that he can not play ball in Nocktown.

Harry Camnitz, twirler formerly with New Castle, has been recalled from Butler, Pa., and will finish the season with the Nocks. Kelly, an outfielder, who played with Beaver Falls of the West Penn., has also been signed by Smith.

Bill Glassburner, with Sharon last season, this year with Steubenville of the P. O. M. has been released by Stetler.

Each team's share of the Labor Day receipts is $222.16. The total receipts were $1,837.30. As has been the custom since the organization of the league the receipts of the holiday games are pooled. Lancaster only drew 166 persons in the morning, while the afternoon game was called off on account of rain.

Says Same Man Stole His Wives.

Columbus, O., Sept. 7.—O. S. Neiswander of Piqua, O., a stationary engineer, is inclined to think that another man thinks too well of his taste in selecting wives, as he told Chief O'Connor that one man had stolen two wives from him. He wanted a warrant for his second wife, 19, and also for one E. E. Harbour, 50, of Pemberton, O., whom he says is a man of means. "This is the second wife that man has stolen from me," he declared to Chief O'Connor. "He enticed my first wife away and I got a divorce from her and was remarried a year and a half ago. Now he has taken this one. I think they came to Columbus."

Slack took sick and went to a hospital in Toledo, and Coder returned to Marysville Aug. 10. Slack wrote his wife that he was going to leave the hospital and go to North Farmington, Mich., where he would fish for a few days. This is the last heard of him.

IN POLICE COURT.

All the prisoners in police court Saturday morning wanted to talk to his honor and explain how it happened. It was always a case of hard luck and "give a fellow another trial" but it is such an old, old story that all the mayor gave them was $5 and costs. The wagon had a busy time of it, all the men taking a ride at the city's expense.

James M. Bradford, an actor claiming Philadelphia as his home, was nabbed long after midnight by Officer Abbott and jailed. His fine of $5 and costs was promptly paid.

Sam Mohr, coming from City Lick, tanked up to capacity, was arrested by Officer Abbott, and drew $5 and costs for his. Fine suspended one week.

Sam Radwell was drunk and busily engaged doing nothing when arrested by Officer Abbott. He, too, was given a ride in the wagon. Five and costs and fine suspended a week.

J. A. Stone of Columbus got drunk and went to sleep. Officer Abbott awakened him and he was hauled to the city prison in the wagon. Five and costs, suspended one week.

Gatarrh, Deafness, Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption

Deafness, Head and Ear Noises.

Our system of Treatment for Deafness and the troubles which accompany it is not only effective but absolutely free from pain. No disagreeable instruments are usually necessary as the inner tubes which become blocked up and cause the ringing, buzzing sounds and impair the hearing faculty open up readily to the pleasant vapor medication and the bones of the ear are restored to elasticity by a pleasant electrical massage. The disagreeable noises are then quickly stopped by massage of the eardrum and a mild current of electricity passed into the internal chambers of the ears. Those who have been tortured unsuccessfully in the past are invited to try a new and scientific system which will give immediate relief.

Catarrh of the Head and Throat

Foul breath, spitting slime and mucus, scabs and scales forming in the nose, sneezing, pain, burning itching in the nose, pains in the head, dizziness, impaired smell or taste, drooping in the throat, are easily overcome and cured by Our Treatment.

Catarrh of the Bronchial Tubes.

Coughs, loss of flesh, pain in the sides, frothy or yellow expectoration, shortness of breath, depressed spirits, pain under shoulder blades, night sweats, all fore-runners of consumption are quickly suppressed by the inhalation and spray medication at the Bi-Chemic Medical Institute.

Consumption

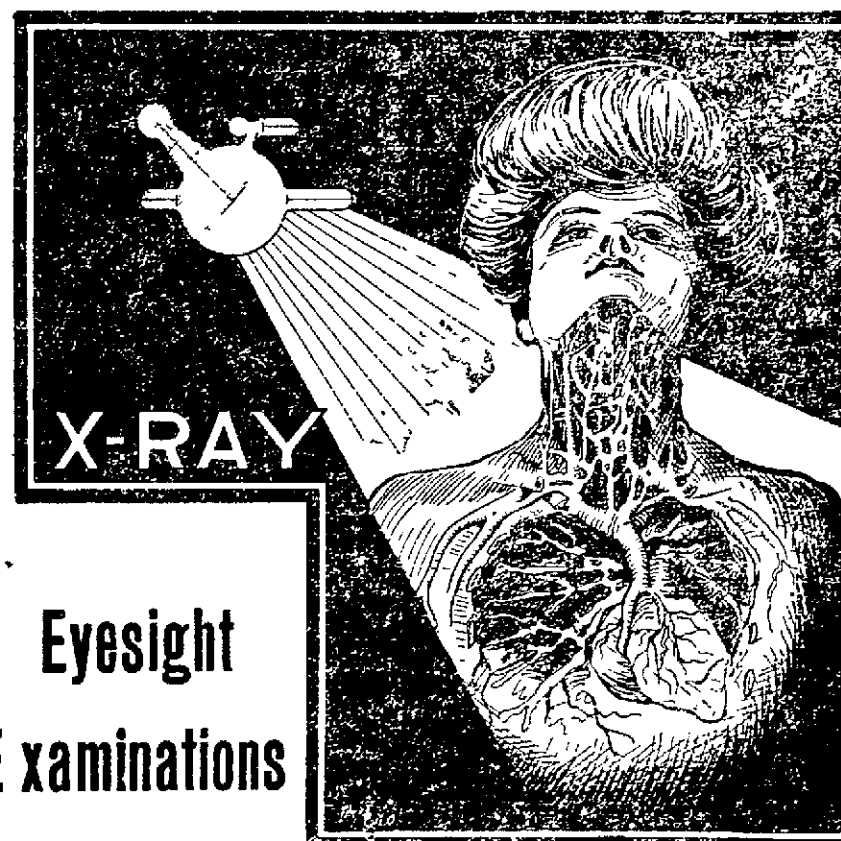

No germ can live when it comes in contact with our treatment. The treatment acts also as a preventive, when used by persons having weak lungs, or any nose, throat or bronchial affection. Our system of treatment battles the lining of all these passages and it prevents the consumption germ, which may be in the air from lodging or implanting itself in the sensitive tissues. Catarrh is thus prevented from extending into the throat or tubes where it frequently gives much annoyance. DO NOT NEGLECT CATARRH because it is the forerunner of throat, lung and lung diseases. IT CAN BE CURED.

NUPTIALS TODAY OF PROF. I. FIELD DENISON ALUMNUS

TO A CHARMING YOUNG WOMAN OF TOLEDO IN THAT CITY

President E. W. Hunt Shot a Moose
While on His Vacation—Granville News.

Granville, O., Sept. 7.—Today Prof. Irving Field, of the Maryland Baptist college, who is professor of zoology in that institute, and who is a son of Rev. T. G. Field of Granville, is to be married today to Miss Florence Nichols of Toledo.

Prof. Field is an alumnus of Denison university of the class of 204 and while in Denison he had the reputation of passing almost the best and most perfect examinations of any student of recent years. He went immediately on his graduation to Harvard university, and was not only received on a par with Harvard graduates for the post graduate course, but within a few weeks was assigned to work of instruction, which was gradually increased in amount and importance during his two years' stay at Harvard. Having completed the work in residence at Harvard required for his doctor's degree in two years he was given his choice a year ago, between the occupancy of the chair of biology at Ohio Wesleyan university during Prof. Rice's absence in Europe and the more permanent position at the Maryland institution, and chose the latter. In his first vocation after leaving Denison university, while studying at the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass., Mr. Field discovered the cause of destruction of the valuable lobster industry and a remedy which brought him great gratitude from the lobster fishermen and a wide scientific appreciation.

Miss Nichols was one of the charming students of the conservatory and of Denison university, a graduate of the class of '06. She has a beautiful soprano voice and personality, which made her a great favorite in Granville. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride in Toledo by Rev. T. G. Field, father of the groom who is district secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union. Miss Nichols is a sister of Bert Nichols of the class of '05, one of Granville's brightest young alumni. A great host of friends in Granville, Toledo and other points will join in congratulations to the happy couple.

Dr. E. W. Hunt, president of Denison university, was received from his month's vacation in the forests of lower Canada as brown as the traditional berry, looking fit for another one of his strenuous years. During Dr. Hunt's absence he lived for the month far away from civilization, with his French-Indian guide, W. Thomas Stoult, who, for the last two years has returned with Dr. Hunt to Granville, and is one of the efficient janitors of Denison university. Dr. Hunt's sporting record this summer included the capture of numerous big speckled trout and the decided achievement of killing a moose. He is already up to his arms in the work of the university.

Dr. E. W. Hunt, president of Denison university, left for Detroit Saturday, where he will preach in the Woodward avenue church Sunday, both morning and evening.

Rev. A. S. Carman of Denison university, will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church in Columbus Sunday.

Miss Grace Hill of Columbus, who has been visiting relatives here for the past few days, has returned to her home.

Miss Anna Robinson of Toledo, is visiting friends in the village for a few days.

Mrs. A. S. Carman and sons, Newton and Joy, and Mrs. Carman's mother, Mrs. C. D. Hanscomb, who have been at Northport, Mich., for the past two months, have returned home.

Miss Edna Thornton has returned from Toledo where she has been visiting her sister for some time. Miss Dee Thornton is still there.

mistaken identity. Mr. Daniel Richards, the man who identified the body as that of the missing man, formerly resided in Granville, and was acquainted with Mr. Smith.

Mrs. Smith, immediately on the receipt of the telegram from Mr. Richards wired for further particulars and received a lengthy telegram giving a full description of the body of man taken from the lake. The description given failed to satisfy Mrs. Smith that it was the body of her husband. It stated that the man's eyes were blue, whereas Mr. Smith's eyes were a dark brown. In the description it was stated that a bunch of keys was found on the dead man. Mrs. Smith says that her husband was never known to have a bunch of keys in his possession. She has wired a close intimate friend of the deceased, a prominent banker of Chicago, to view the body and advise her.

WILLIE CUTE--CUTE UNDER ALL CIRCUMSTANCES

2 2 THE WORLD'S BEST SHORT FICTION 2 2

A Bird's Eye View of Heaven—By Philip Verrill Mighels

THAT 265 West Fifteenth Avenue was heaven is susceptible of proof through the medium of several logical deductions. In the first place, marriages were made there. Secondly, the girls were angels, as discovered and avowed by all the young men visitors. Thirdly, if a thirdly be requisite, there was tiny Gabriel, whose ditty trumpet was certainly destined not to arouse the dead.

Despite the total absence of celestial harps, be-feathered pinions, and golden thoroughfares, Dick Rudder and plump Dot Bonny knew absolutely how well within the gates of Paradise they stood at the moment when Dorothy's warm, sweet lips delivered up that hostage of a woman's love—her kiss of beatific surrender.

Unfortunately for Dick, sweet Miss Dorothy had delivered up at least one hostage before—and to quite another individual. But indeed it was more by welcomed accident than by conscious design that Dot had permitted the surrender to occur, since even now she was wholly unprepared to decide between her two admirers, from a standpoint of altars, trousseaux, and honeymoon.

There is an indescribable relief to the mind in any final surrender, however, hence the ceremony of ratifying a new understanding was not to be completed to the satisfaction of either Dot or Dick with undue haste. It therefore chanced that the heart-to-heart negotiations were only well in progress when the door behind the pair was abruptly opened and in there strode the mother of all the Bonny angels.

As befitted her position and relationship, Mrs. Bonny was modeled in the generous dimensions of a goddess. Moreover, she looked the part. As rigid, judicial, and conventional as sculptured stone—to all the male aspirants for an angel's hand who were not distinctly good, big catches for the girls—she had early thrown an icy stare at the irresponsible and wholly impossible Mr. Richard Rudder. She therefore halted on the threshold now like the outraged Nemesis of love's young dream.

"Richard Rudder!" she presently cried in astonishment; "how dare—how dare you? Dot! Mr. Rudder, you are not kissing my daughter!"

Miss Dorothy suddenly wilted from her lover's arms. But Dick was unscathed and unshaken. "Why, no, I'm not, dear ma," said he with unblinking cheer, as he came for Mrs. Bonny ardently. "I'm kissing—"

The heavy artillery salute was fired against the cheek of the dignified and astonished lady, and Mrs. Bonny gasped.

"You—you prodigal—you—Richard Rudder, release me instantly!" she said explosively. "You—shame! How horribly bold and uncalled for! I forbid you to kiss—this family in any such manner, Mr. Rudder. What does all this—this riotous behavior mean?"

"Means I've broken into heaven, little mother," answered Richard. "Give me one more kiss of welcome, and—"

"Richard—stop! Dick!—you only skirt—get away!" responded Mrs. Bonny, ejecting the enthusiastic Richard with a push of her matronly arm. "What do you mean? I never heard of such conduct in my life! Dorothy Bonny, you haven't engaged yourself to this mad dreamer, after all you said to Franklin Webb?"

Dot was not at ease. "I didn't say—much—to Mr. Webb," she uttered. "Oh, that's all right. I don't mind a little thing like that," interjected Dick generously.

Mrs. Bonny ignored his remark. "Didn't say much?" she repeated to Dot. "You told him he might hope—for he came and confessed it all to me."

"Well—can't he—hope?" inquired the angel faintly.

"Why, yes, let him hope," Dick responded readily. "Do him good."

"Hope?—hope?" her mother echoed, and upon permitting this—this Dick to kiss—

"He kissed you too," Miss Dot dared to interrupt.

Mrs. Bonny swept her handkerchief across her entire countenance absolvingly.

"You—liked it," she retorted.

"Mother knows, Dot; don't dispute," said Dick.

"You hush, sir," the mother commanded. "I refuse to consent to any engagement between you and my child. Why, it's perfect madness. You haven't a thing in the world. And here is Franklin Webb, a splendid match. What in the world are you dreaming of—you two? What sort of a mother do you think I am, not to do my duty by my child?"

"Duty? Why Dorothy loves me best," said Richard. "Don't you, Dot?" Dorothy engaged with a spot she was rubbing on the table, nodded her pretty head. Dick added confidently:

"If the mere absence of capital is all that stands in the way, I'll remove your objections at once, dear mamma."

Mrs. Bonny's dignity searched every corner of her face for a place of refuge from the irrepressible Dick.

"You'll make a fortune as usual with one of your wild, impracticable schemes, I presume," she answered, as grimly as possible. "I give you fair warning, Richard—Mr. Rudder—that Dorothy shall not be permitted either to trifle with Mr. Webb or to marry a man in your present indefinite position."

Now Dick, despite his airy calm, was aware of, and entertained a large respect for, the powers that Dorothy's mother could bring to bear on her last remaining angel's mind and heart. He was almost as wise as he was irrepressible.

"That's all right—eminently proper," he answered. "All I ask is a chance to prove what I can do. Why I've lost more fortunes than Webb ever had in his life. So we'll just consider it's a bargain that I'm your son as soon as I scare up a business. I'll kiss you again, to seal the—"

"Dick!—Richard, go away this instant!" cried the lady, thrusting forth her arms offensively. "You impudent—"

"Mam—ma," came from a room at the rear of—

tell him a story."

"All right," said Dick, consulting his watch. "I've got fifteen minutes before I slide up-town to close a deal I know of that is simply the biggest thing that ever happened."

He winked at Dot and would have bowed Mrs. Bonny through the door, but his elective mother-in-law had once been a girl herself. She therefore waited between the would-be-lovers in the brief procession to the farther apartment. And here she presently beheld the pale little Gabriel sitting contentedly on the knee of the irresponsible Richard and holding the big brown hand in happiness ineffable. Thereat her dignity vanished and her heart was filled with conflicting emotions. She paused at her darning for a moment to listen, so intent was the tiny chap's absorption. Dick was reciting:

"Little fishie in the brook, Papa catch him with a hook, To get his little speckled skin, To wrap the baby in."

"That," imparted Dick, "is a song composed by the fairies at the birth of Frank Webb."

Then at length when he found himself obliged to depart, poor Richard received but a love-lorn glance from Dorothy, whose mother it was that went with the lover to the door.

"Mr. Rudder," she said, in that firm, sweet manner that he knew he must always respect and admire, "we shall continue to make you welcome as we have before—and we should miss you very much if you failed to come, but you know it would not be good sense for you and Dot to think of marriage on nothing. She has half accepted Franklin Webb, with my approval, and it seems she has half accepted you, without—"

"Oh, there's nothing half-way about it," interrupted Dick.

"Yes, there is, for I cannot sanction it, Mr. Rudder, and be wise," she corrected. "I don't think I should really admit it is even a half-way arrangement, but I'd rather not seem harsh. So I prefer to appeal to your own sense of right and judgment."

"Mother," said Dick pathetically, "believing he could work an affect with pathos—mother, you don't really mean you are shutting me out of heaven—into the cold, hard world?"

"Richard, don't be a goose," she answered, softening despite herself. "If you can make a fortune so quick—and easily, why go and make it and then—well see."

His face became elongated, almost to melancholy. This expression remained, however, for a second only.

"All right," he responded. "That's fair enough. Will you kiss your son on that agreement, dearest mother?"

"Of course, not!" I'm amazed at you, Dick," Mrs. Bonny replied in confusion. "Go along, you silly boy. Good-bye." And she closed the door.

II.

In accumulating a fortune, the financiers of the Richard Rudder school of economics find the largest difficulty that of acquiring scraps of paper sufficient to contain the vast array of figures which the possibilities of a given enterprise marshal so swiftly—in the mind.

Dick wore out his pencils, in simple additions and multiplications of potential profits, within the week succeeding his so-called engagement to heaven with his news, and drew the full audience about him. Indeed, he drew the wan little Gabriel, trumpet and all, to his knee, and there the tiny chap sat, adoring the big giant of comfort.

"Mother," said Dick glowingly, "I've bought three businesses for two dollars and thirty-five cents, from a feldo you suppose you could get her contraptions ready on time?"

"Oh, Dick! Contraptions!" said Dorothy, blushing like an evening sky. Her thoughts, during his absence, had been mostly for Webb! They were now all clustered on Dick—like bits of iron on a magnet.

"I'm afraid I should be too much interested in the three new businesses to do any sewing so quickly," Mrs. Bonny made answer. "But you haven't told me what these enterprises are."

"They're all big things," Richard told them, digging down in his pocket for a stubby pencil. "The point is, which shall I develop first? Now here's one: I've got a secret for manufacturing balloon gas that is five times more valuable than anything at present in use. Five times! Do you know what that means? Why I've simply got a lead-pipe cinch on all the balloon business of the world. In less than six months I'll be supplying the gas for every ascension on the habitable globe, and as all balloonists are only rich idiots, I won't do a thing but hand them out the gas for dough. Why I can charge any price I like, and you can figure—"

"Me, Dick—me! Me wants a balloon!" interrupted little Gabriel, who remembered with ecstasy the amazing explosion of his last gaudy bauble of the tissue-rubber description.

"All right," agreed Dick. "I'll buy you a bunch."

"Are balloons such common commodities?" inquired Mrs. Bonny earnestly. "Are they unusually numerous this year?"

"Coming more and more into use," responded Richard cheerily. "But even supposing I didn't count my gas as worth a penny, I'd still be O. K. I've got a recipe for making vinegar out of crude petroleum, and I've got the Rudder Patent Inhaler Apparatus for all affections of the nose, ear, and throat. I'll guess anybody knows how many millions of gallons of vinegar are consumed per year. Why this country alone, if I figure on only two cents a gallon profit, would net a man a fortune every month."

"Oh, my," gasped the breathless and admiring Dot.

"Nassy vinegar," said Gabriel, who had undergone countless applications of brown paper, soaked in the pungent liquid, on his poor little lungs.

"And does your patent inhaler promise equally abundant returns?" inquired Mrs. Bonny in unperturbed calm. "It sounds like the gas."

"Oh, I'm improving the whole thing, to make it popular," said Dick. "It's a good, hot thing, but Cozen missed on the most important point. You see, it's a tent, or bag, to go over the patient's head, provided with a suitable means of creating fumes inside for the patient to breathe. People love to breathe—"

"Any old fumes for red eyes and earache and tonsils. They think there's something doing. And this thing gives them a chance to live on fumes! But Cozen made his smoke out of stuff that comes too high and smells too low. People won't stand for that sort of a deal. I lay awake all one night to think up something cheap that would make a heap of agreeable smoke and fume. People like lots of fuss when they think they're sick, like my Uncle Toby. And at last I've got the greatest thing on earth." He paused impressively.

Mrs. Bonny darned, and waited. Dorothy stood entranced. "What is it?" she managed at length to ask.

"Don't give this away to a soul—not to a soul," cautioned Richard. "It's time—just common, unaltered time—which I sell as a special preparation. You adjust the tent, put the time in a basin, pour on the liquid, and with the apparatus, and she commercial dexterity. "Richard Rudder! This is news indeed!"

"I had to get a whole pair of trousers, and I owed for three months' rent, and—oh, I nearly forgot—here's something for little King Courage."

He drew from his pocket a large nickel watch that advertised the guardianship of time with a husky tick. The nickel in the eager little hand allayed his mood. His own boyish joy and tiny brief's unbounded delight presently resumed. "It's a good legitimate business—ten times more honest than dozens that have made men rich all over the earth. And—if you folks could make the tents, why we'd form a company and share the profits and make things hum. Could you make me half a dozen by to-morrow noon?"

"But we've got to make the wedding dress and—lots of things besides," said the sweet, impulsive Dorothy with another of her blushes.

"There is no particular haste about a wedding gown, my dear," amended Dot's mother, who saw much need for judicial utterance. "And, Richard, suppose we wait and see what reports you get from the three tents and bottles of water already sold before we make up a stock."

Dick looked at her half reproachfully. As a matter of fact his conscience had worked overtime since his three successful sales, but he felt the situation to be desperate.

"Dear mother," he said gravely, "if you question this business that I have done so much to perfect, just say the word and I'll pitch it all to the dogs. There are dozens of ways for me to carve out a career of—"

"Give up—a fortune!" gasped Dorothy. "Oh, Dick!"

"There is all kinds of money in my apparatus," he continued, "but I place myself entirely in your hands, little ma—for worse or wiser."

"You shall do nothing of the sort," said Mrs. Bonny in alarm. "I wouldn't accept such a responsibility for worlds."

"Well, then, what about the tents—lime—and water?"

"I don't know. It's getting late, Richard. You will have to go home and think it out for yourself."

Despite his exquisite joy in the watch, the little man on Richard's knee had cuddled in sleep against the big warm arm, his gleeful twinkle held tightly in his thin little hand. Dick placed him tenderly down in the cot against the wall.

"Then what about marrying Dot, pretty soon?" he interrogated.

Mrs. Bonny was shaken in her judgment, nevertheless she answered according to the dictates of reason.

"You said you would first accomplish something substantial in business," she replied.

"Oh, mamma!" said Dot, whose eyes were very suns to shine an ardent love upon their master.

For a moment Dick wore his troubled, boyish look about the eyes.

"Well," he answered in all his customary cheer, "I will. May I kiss Dot good-night?"

"I fear—you'd better—not," faltered Mrs. Bonny.

"Oh mamma!" repeated Miss Dorothy.

Dick said: "May I kiss you, then?"

"Certainly not!"

"All right," assented Richard, "but I'll sometime yet."

He gave a tender caress to tiny Gabriel and said good-night.

And after a little slip of time, two women missed his presence oddly.

For the brain to start awake from the depths of somnambulism is sufficiently annoying, but for conscience to leap to its feet from a state of hibernation is positively painful. Dick Rudder, ingenious with all his worldcraft, and honest, forthright, despite his idiosyncrasies of vision, had lived by his fancy being's stupidity with all the serenity and good digestion of a holy monk—till after his talk with Mrs. Bonny. Then something had happened.

In vain he stoked the furnaces of his bearings of his hand-to-mouth philosophy. His spirits ran down in his shoes and his walking was heavy. Dick had never loved anything in all his life as he loved the three in that little unperturbed heaven. Wee Gabriel had stirred his profoundest sense of potential parenthood; Mrs. Bonny had been as sunshine on the garden of his mood; and Dot, with a kiss, had crowned him with lovehood so vast that all the good that his heart could his active brain, was dark, silent, deserted.

For a number of days poor Dick sat with them that abide in the shadow of pessimism. Deprived of his wits, he was shorn of love, hope, and fortune in one small cataclysm. But the climax of his wretchedness was capped, one chilly afternoon, when he suddenly found himself almost face to face with a young married couple to whom he had sold an inhaler.

He was sitting in a car; his fare had been paid; the nickel had been his last. He was weary with walking, and far from home. But he bolted. Before his victims discovered him he fled, swung off on the cobbles, escaped their dread, accusing gaze, and fell far behind in the surge of the crowd.

That was page one of Richard's torment. It seemed thereafter as if that tall young man, who had bought the inhaler so unsuspectingly, haunted the world with his presence. He was everywhere. No corner seemed sufficiently obscure, no route was so mean that Dick could avoid a meeting with this fiend of innocence wherever he went, Richard lost sleep. He felt himself robbed of his nerve, therefore debased. That his victim pursued him was certain. Moreover, there was Uncle Toby, to whom he had sold another outfit, still to be heard from.

To think of a visit to the Bonny's now was unendurable. Dick's nightmare's were harnessed double, for twenty-four-hour service daily.

In the lough of his utter despair, Richard sat one evening at the table, in his six by ten apartment, ruminating vacuously over the prospect of existence. The day had been trying. Three times he had barely escaped that awful monster who had purchased a tent. That fate was surrounding him hourly was a thought he entertained perpetually.

Presently the sound of a footstep in the outer hall awoke him to vague apprehension. Then a knock, as aggressive as that of the gas-man, sent a poignant of intuition to his heart. He had no time to turn the knob. The door was impetuously opened, and there stood—that terrible man he had struggled so manly to escape.

With a sickly grin poor Dick arose from his chair.

"At last!" cried his visitor. "I've hunted this whole town over to find you, man. You sold me a bag—a cure for pneumonia. It worked splendidly, but we've used up all the stuff, and I'd like to get some more at once. My sister's child—"

But Dick, running forward, fell so literally upon the stranger's neck and face that he all but doubled his man upon the floor and broke off his speech with painful abruptness.

"Excuse me—beg pardon—awful sorry," blurted the all but weeping Richard. "I am so glad—so sorry about your sister's child. I haven't got an ounce of it—of preparation here. But I'll run and get some at the—ware-house at once. I'll be back in three minutes. Oh, Lord, but I'm glad—I'm glad you found me; I mean. It—worked! Where's my hat?"

He found the tile and with his visitor behind him went down the stairs to the street.

"Just wait for me here," said Dick, pausing on the sidewalk. "I'll fetch the stuff in a minute."

Inconsequently happy Richard darted around the corner, to enter the cellar of that self-same house where he abided. With two great white hunks, like stone, in hand he appeared a moment later.

"I'm glad it worked," he said impetuously and in sudden penitence. "It's simply unaltered lime—and common water. Next time you can get a supply and always have it on hand."

"Common lime and water?" repeated the young married man. "Why, thanks! It's awfully good of you to let me know. It works wonders. Good-night!" And he thrust forth his hand for Dick to shake.

Immeasurably happy and eased in his conscience to think he had voluntarily revealed the secret of his new-found trade, Dick climbed again to his room, airily whistling.

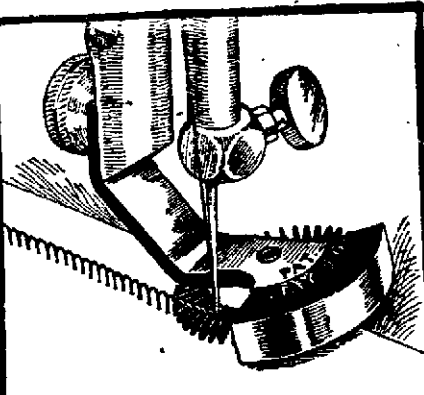

And that night he slept as he always had before, as serenely as a Claude Duval.

The morning brought a second installment of astonishment. It took the form of a letter from Uncle Toby, who said in part:

"Young man, I believe there is something in you after all. Your tent and curative substances performed a miracle on my last bad cold and congested throat. Bless me, I wouldn't be surprised if it saved my life! Dick, I'm proud to make you my successor. It's

Dick staggered at the size of the figures on the slip of paper contained in the envelope. He sat him down and tried to think, but the whole affair was quite as inexplicable as it appeared to be real.

The fact of the matter was that quite by accident Dick had come upon a discovery of exceptional worth. The fumes of slackened lime, inhaled under cover, have extraordinary efficacy in cases of croup and congestion of the lungs and larynx. But even with evidence of all this before him poor Dick was too untrusting to realize that he had developed a wholesome, legitimate business, as beneficial to his customers as it was to himself.

What with the visit to his uncle and the opening of new vistas of commerce, wealth, and importance, suddenly thrust upon him, Richard's time for breathing, eating, and sleeping was threatened with total elimination from his calendar.

Weary, but triumphant, confident of fortune in time, that should be hand in hand with honor, a humbled Richard came at length to the heaven at 265 West Fifteenth Avenue to tell his tale. He had planned a dignified recital, to be effectively delayed. Nevertheless, the sight of Mrs. Bonny, at the door, ignited all his boyish boast and fervor of impatience in a flash.

"My tent," he began on Uncle Toby like a charm, dear mother," he cried. "He thinks I saved his life. He has set me up in business on a salary as big as all out-does. I'm to be his successor, and—what's the trouble?" he suddenly demanded.

"Gabriel—he's terribly ill. He hasn't slept for days—he can't sleep. The doctor dares not give him anything. He's going to die," said the agonized mother in a despairing, dry-voiced calm.

"Gabriel?—oh, no! no! my little Gabriel!" cried Dick as he hastened through the hall to the little fellow's cot. "Partner—dear little chum, he crooned, 'there's good-for-nothing Dick come back, with candy and—don't you know me, old chap?'"

With a stifled groan he sank to his knees beside the child; little Gabriel looked at him almost with a smile; but his eyes were starting with a luminosity unhuman and frightening to see, while some strange nervous rigidity so possessed him that he lay in a manner distressing to behold.

"Cuddle up in old Dick's arms," begged Richard as soon as he could speak. "My little boy—my little man."

"Thought," his eyes were brimming, Dick's big cheering smile came back to his lips at the summons of love.

Weakly little Gabriel curved his arms in an attempt to clasp them about the strong, comforting neck. Then up and down the apartment Richard commenced to walk, crooning, humming, softly reciting tales and rhymes, and patting the little fellow's head.

Strangely light against the breast where he was held so lovingly, little Gabriel made no sound, but stared as ever with those sleepless, fire-lighted eyes on Richard's face.

An hour went by and Dick had only commenced his walking and his comforting. As yet not a sign had been vouchsafed that the little fellow in his arms could ever rest normally again. But up and down he went, smiling unfailingly and crooning with a voice of infinite caressing.

The afternoon began to wane. The doctor appeared, looked silently upon the scene, and nodded approval.

"It's the only chance he's got," he said, and he went away.

Dick was patiently walking as before, walking, crooning little rhymes, soothing as only Dick could do.

As the dusk of twilight crept softly into the corners of the room, little Gabriel's body relaxed something of that singular rigidity. His eyes, however, still blazed with sleeplessness.

The darkness increased. Night was come. The lamp was lighted, and still patient Dick trod to and fro across the carpet with his burden. Dot and her mother could do nothing but watch—and yearn over Dick and the little fellow.

It was eight o'clock. There had been no cessation of the crooning, the patting of the big, wholesome hand, or the soporific walking up and down. And at last the fierceness of the flame in tiny Gabriel's eyes was lessening.

Other hour and the lids were slightly drooping.

It was midnight, silent and brooding, when at last the big fellow placed his little partner in his cot, profoundly sleeping.

"I'm going to be here when he wakes," announced the weary Dick as he rose to his feet. "I'll rest a moment," and he staggered to a chair.

Matured, by the night of stress, Dorothy realized at last, beyond all frivolity and indecision, where lay the love of her heart and soul. She knelt beside the chair where Dick had come to a halt and held his old limp hand against her cheek. Utterly exhausted, he had fallen asleep the moment the danger-point had vanished.

Something infinitely pathetic in the expression came back to its about his eyes and lips.

Mrs. Bonny looked at Dick and with all the fondness of her

"WHY, NO, . . . I'M KISSING—YOU"

compass was magnified to dimensions incredible.

Therefore Dick was sad. His bright kaleidoscope of schemes and dollars was a broken thing. The plans with which the toy had been filled were

TUCKED WHITE WAIST.

THE simple shirt waist is the one which is in most demand and that may fairly be called a necessity. It makes the best of all waists for wear with the simple tailored suit, and it also is much to be desired for home wear both with skirts, to match, and those of contrasting material. Illustrated is an exceedingly smart model that is adapted to silk, to wool and to the cotton and linen settings and which can be either lined or unlined, as preferred. In this case, it is made of plaid taffeta, stitched with beading silk, but white plaids are to be much worn during the entire season, there are a great many figured, striped and plain materials which are equally desirable, cashmere and henrietta being well liked, as well as the more familiar flannels and silks.

The waist is made with a fitted lining, which is optional, fronts and back. The fronts are tucked to yoke depth, while the back is plain, and there is a regulation box plait at the center front. The sleeves are the favorite ones of the season that are laid in tucks at their lower edges, then joined to straight cuffs, which are closed with buttons and button-holes. At the neck can be worn any fancy stock which may be preferred, but the plain one of the material is always correct.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 3 1/2 yards 21, 3 1/2 yards 27, or 2 yards 44 inches wide.

The pattern 5188 is cut in sizes for a 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inch bust measure.

KIMONO DRESSING SACQUE.

There is no dressing sacque more thoroughly satisfactory than the simple one in kimono style. Here is a model that allows a choice of round or pointed sleeves, and that is admirably well adapted to the pretty new washable fabrics as well as to such light weight wools as challis, albatross and the like, and to the simpler silks. In the illustration it is made of figured China silk, with bands of blue, but there are so many lovely lawns, batistes and the like, that its possibilities are almost without limit. While for the warm garment, either the light weight wool or a thin silk lined with albatross is to be highly commended.

The kimono is made with the yoke and full portion, which is gathered and joined thereto. The sleeves are in one piece each, simply gathered at their upper edges and trimming bands finish them, the neck and the front.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 3 1/2 yards of 27, 3 1/2 yards 36, or 2 1/2 yards 44 inches wide with 4 yards of ribbon.

The pattern 5588 is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inch bust measure.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

Dear Miss Dane: I will send you a sample of my dress; do you think eyelet embroidery and black velvet would be pretty to trim it in? I am 5 feet 5 inches tall, a little stout.—Mrs. C. W. L.

I am afraid English eyelet embroidery is too near akin to the design of the sample to be a successful combination. I should like either black or white lace. Though washable, such a dress should take you through one autumn with care although it is really very dainty.

The skirt could be in seven gores with a couple of tucks down each seam to flounce depth, the bottom hemmed and tucked and each tucked edged with either a row of narrow black ribbon or a little lace frill, black or white, as you prefer. Then the waist could have tucks on the shoulders, forming a yoke, edged in keeping with the skirt, and be cut out deep V shape to display a chemise with lace insertion sewn together crosswise, while in black or unlined, save for poussee line or a bit of thin, pale blue silk. Outline the V with black velvet in rows if you have trimmed with lace. If with ribbon, then use ribbon there. Bring into a belt of the goods if quite stout, otherwise use black or blue ribbon. Have full sleeves ending three-quarter length in pretty cuffs, and your frock will be as pretty and dainty as possible. In regard to the hat, I prefer the trimming of blue malines and plumes to the scarf arrangement. Allow the black velvet to fall down over the hair and to catch the plumes down, then trim with ruchings of malines.

Dear Miss Dane: I would like suggestions for remodeling a dress like sample. The skirt is made with a deep flounce, cut circular and set on the upper portion with heading. Flounce has 10 rows of shirring material, being taken up in shirring to form a small tuck. The upper portion is cut circular with not very much fullness at waist line. Waist is made like picture inclosed, yoke being of the material shirred. My height is 5 ft. 3 1/2 in., bust 34, waist 22 1/2, hips 37, weight 115 pounds. Please suggest inexpensive material in colors for autumn school wear. Would a black nun's veiling skirt make like picture be suitable to wear with separate waists?—A Reader.

I do not think much change can be made on the skirt without taking a very great deal of trouble, and, seeing that it is sufficiently modern for present wear, I should so remodel the waist that the whole gown would suggest a smart, up-to-date appearance.

I wish, you had mentioned of what material your gown was made, as I would have assisted me in advising a combination. The present yoke should be replaced with one of lace or silk, as considered practicable, or the waist may be cut off at yoke depth for wear with a lingerie gilette.

The shirrings at the top of the sleeves should be released, changing the butterfly puff to a plain full one, confined by cuffs matching the yoke. If you have used a bright or fancy silk, make the belt of the same, and in the case of cutting away for wear with gilette, give a jumper effect by finishing the top with a band of a contrasting color, allowing cuffs and belt to match. If you will bend all your energies toward modernizing the waist as much as possible, the skirt will never be noticed.

I like the skirt model of cut inclosed, but for practical wear I fancy nun's veiling as a material will scarcely be a wise choice, unless a skirt for better wear is required. To my thinking, any one of the family of mohairs would give better service, or a nice Panama. You are so slight that bright surfaces and wavy fabrics will be more becoming than dull clinging effects, and besides, both mohair and Panama are dust-resisting, while nun's veiling is apt to absorb it. Inexpensive cotton materials meeting your needs are gingham, seersucker, percale, madras, Galatea, cotton voile, cotton poplin and chambray.

Dear Miss Dane—I am 5 feet 4 inches in height, 19 1/2 inch waist, 29 bust and 39 hip; am 20 years old, weigh 104 pounds. I am very fair, sort of no color, have dark brown (almost black) eyes, and an abundant supply of rich auburn hair and a small round face. How should I wear my hair? What color should I wear best and what do you say to my size?—Rosebud.

You are quite slender for your height. I am sure your hair is lovely, and you should wear it as loosely and fluffily as possible. Take it back from the face in pompadour style to the crown of the head, tie there with something flexible, as a shoestring, for instance, and then divide into strands. Curl these around the two first fingers of both hands and pin down to the head irregularly rather than in rows. This is known as the Virginia curl coiffure and will well become you.

In regard to colors, you can wear deep rich brown, all shades of gray, Alice, cadet and navy blues, very pale yellow, mauve, heliotrope, dark green.

My course is the original and only really successful correspondence course in this country. Every woman should know how to make a hat, how to trim it correctly and know everything pertaining to woman's headgear.

MAKING HATS AT HOME permits you to have more hats and be more stylish at one-fifth the cost; also to make hats for your neighbors, or to enter fine-paying millinery field. Copyists receive $15 to $25; trimmers, $25 to $35, and designers, $40 to $50 weekly. Demand exceeds supply. Course is taught by leading teacher of America's fashion center. Can be learned by girl of twelve. Some of my graduates have taken positions immediately after finishing my course and are getting from $15 to $25 per week to start on.

One girl in Greenville, Mo., says: "I just think the lessons are fine, and I am sure I can never thank you enough for your goodness in helping me in the work." A Tuskegee lady writes: "Since I received my first lesson I have made up a buckram frame and have covered it with velvet. I have it already engaged for $250. What do you think of that, for the first lesson?"

One happy pupil has written me: "Am more than pleased with your lessons and am improving rapidly. Have had two orders for Spring hats and have made two winter hats. I can get several more orders and more than make profit enough for my next month's work."

Send for my free booklet "Millinery Taught by Mail." It is one of the most interesting booklets ever sent to women, and tells you all about my successful correspondence course. I want a few autumn classes to start at once, so write me immediately.

GOOD HEALTH

A Few Simple Hints On Simple Ways To Remain Well.

By COUNSEL JOHNS.

ARTICLE NO. 10.

WITH all our modern science, we are still, more or less, helpless against some of the more common and apparently simple ailments that affect us.

One of these baffling troubles is rheumatism. The various forms of treatment that have been and are tried against it amount literally to hundreds. But in the end, recovery must be had to the end and several modes of living if cure or even alleviation, is to be obtained.

Of all errors of diet, probably the one that is most commonly a factor in rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and other allied complaints, is the mistake of eating too much meat. Perhaps a common-sense avoidance of meat is not always possible, but the sufferer should at least cut his meat down to the very lowest possible ration.

Three months a week are as pure as a silver from rheumatism. If this seems unduly strict, then eat meat once a day in the most perfect healthy persons could eat.

Prepared liquors, such as beer, the porter, etc., must absolutely be cut off. Heavy wines like port, sherry, brandy, etc., should be cut off. Potatoes, turnips, carrots, and radishes are good. Under any circumstances, none of the vegetables is as harmful as meat; therefore, the rheumatic person doing better than the meat-eater.

Onions and lettuce are the prime vegetables for diet. Potatoes have too much starch. Beets have too much sugar. Turnips, carrots and radishes are good. Under any circumstances, none of the vegetables is as harmful as meat; therefore, the rheumatic person doing better than the meat-eater.

Lots of pure water of a normal temperature is excellent medicine. Most

THE WAY TO IRON SHIRTS

FOR ironing fold the shirt straight down the middle of the back, and from the body smooth, take care to move the iron mainly straight with the warp. Next fold a sleeve flat along the sloped seam, and iron it upon both sides. Iron first through the middle, then take hold of wrist-band or shoulder with the left hand, and hold tuck while the iron goes quite to the join. Open the wrist-band, lay it flat, and iron hand over the wrong side, then turn and press upon the right side. Next iron yoke and neck-band. Then come the tug-of-war—otherwise ironing the bosom.

First fasten the neck-band properly, next slip the bosom-board inside the shirt, and spread the bosom smooth upon it, pressing it out simultaneously with both hands. With a thin, clean cloth wet the whole linen surface lightly with weak raw starch. Rub it in very well, and, if any place is sticky, wipe it off with a cloth dipped in tepid water. Have the iron hot enough to yellow dry cloth if left to stand on it ten seconds. Begin at the bottom of the bosom and iron straight toward the neck, up the middle, holding the neck-band in the left hand, and pulling hard against the iron. Here as much depends on the left hand as the right—the knack lies mainly in knowing how to pull properly.

If the bosom wrinkles, or forms one of the warts known to laundresses as "cat-faces," wet the place with clear water, stretch it smooth and iron over again. Rub the iron over with white wax before beginning work, also in the salt tray, to insure a perfectly smooth surface. If the starch is right, properly made and applied, it will not stick to the face. But if a yellowy crust with a blunt knife, and be sure to wax and salt-polish the iron again before setting it on the shirt.

When the whole bosom is smooth, and nearly dry, take one of the polishing irons, not quite so hot as the others, rub the face of it with either polishing wax or white soap, and press the bosom hard all over, bearing hard on the rounded iron-point. Iron and polish cuffs on a flannel-covered board. Wet them also with raw starch, or, more properly, starch water, press first upon the wrong side with a very hot iron, and turn upon the right side only when nearly dry.

THE WOMAN ADMIRER BY MEN

THE charm for men in the woman that is womanly lies, I am sure, in the perfect readiness with which she appeals to their manly chivalry. Sometimes I fear that our very modern and independent girls don't realize that such a quality as chivalry exists as much to-day as in the time of Ivanhoe and the fair Ravana, and that it can be called forth and as graciously acknowledged, as when the steel-clad knights fared forth in the quest of wrongs to be made right.

The truly womanly woman and the most agreeable woman is not the least self-confident, self-helpful and delightfully dignified because she accepts masculine services and masculine compliments with frank pleasure. She admires men's courage, their strength and their courtesy, she delights in the deference they pay to her because she is a woman, and she is careful never herself to assume a manly little air of complete self-reliance and a total scorn of small feminine foibles.

Men and women, indeed, are equals, but they are different, and no son of Adam feels just the same toward you if you put down your heels very hard when you walk, talk in a loud voice, refuse to have your parcels carried, insist upon paying your own car-fare, laugh at the idea of needing the support of an escort's arm, call a spade a spade without any reserves, and brusquely ignore Mr. Jones' pretty little speeches, and forget to thank the amiable young gentleman who offers you his seat in the public conveyance.

Cultivate your mind and win the biggest salary you can, and grow a strength of body, and play outdoor games with zest, but do not forget what excellent things in woman a low voice and a light step are; let your masculine companions open the door for you, rescue your handkerchief from the floor, move your chair, and remember that a man has written that "grace in woman has more effect than beauty."

STATIONERY

PLAIN white or gray unruled sheets of paper, and black ink, are the approved materials for social correspondence. There is no objection to be urged against the varieties of pretty stationery now manufactured in soft tones of blue, gray, green and buff, and in assorted sizes of sheet and envelope; but it is in very bad taste to use paper of a startling indigo, red, yellow or lilac hue, with a highly glazed finish and length in pretty folds of outlandish shapes, and written upon with purple, blue or white ink.

Preferably a lady's stationery is never performed, but if any fragrance is desired it should be of a delicate, almost elusive quality. Dignified middle-aged or elderly ladies most appropriately use in their correspondence Irish linen or bank-note paper in white, gray or gray-blue.

If it is ill-advised for a woman to use a pronounced style of stationery, for men anything but the most plain and simple is quite inexcusable. Gray-blue bank-note, linen, or cream-laid papers, all severely plain, are the only varieties permitted a man in his social correspondence. The sheets must not be ruled, and should fold once into their envelopes. In a man's stationery perfume is wholly discontinued. Whatever his business stationery may be, every man can afford to keep by him a certain amount of good white paper for all his social correspondence since it is not permissible for no reason on his part in answering a woman's office paper in answering a woman's office paper in answering a woman's office paper, simply stamped with the name of the organization, is usually provided, and this can be properly used by the members in replying to all friendly epistles.

A GOOD BLEACH

Javelle Water.—A standard preparation for bleaching white things, and removing spots and stains from them. It must not touch colored surfaces, as it is certain to fade them. To make it, dissolve half a pound of washing soda in a pint of boiling water, and mix it with a quarter-pound of chloride of lime, dissolved in a quart of boiling water. Stir well together, let settle, pour off the clear liquid, and keep closely corked in a dark place, as it loses strength by standing in air and light.

CLEANING PILLOWS AND BEDS

TO clean pillows, whether of down or feathers, empty the stuffing into a bag of cheesecloth or mosquito netting, tie the mouth of it tight, and wash in a big tub of strong white soap suds, tumbled up with ammonia. Rub the bag between the hands and squeeze up and down for ten minutes. Rinse in clear hot water twice, do not squeeze, but hang to drain and dry—in the sun, or near the heat. When half dry pull the bag apart several times. When fully dry, drop it inside a thicker bag, and whip vigorously with a rattan whip for ten minutes. The feather will be like new. There is a slight loss, of course. Half a dozen pillows will come through the wash about five. Because of the loss do not wash either feathers or hair in set tubs—the stuff going into the pipes makes no end of trouble.

Feather beds or hair mattresses can be washed the same way. Either is an undertaking, but one worth while. Pick up the hair from the mattress before it is wet. Let it dry thoroughly before making up anew. To do this, put a mattress tick, sew the bottom and both sides well together, bind the seams, and sew on a cover and the top. Spread a sheet on the floor, stretch the new tick upon it, and set a chair at each corner, to which the sides may be attached. Thus they stay upright, while the hair goes in. Pack it evenly all over, then draw down the cover, and pin it smoothly to the sides and across the bottom. Begin at one side and tack, using a mattress needle and soft but strong twine—rough twine cuts and pulls. Go up and down twice, and finish by tying. Mattress buttons are ornamental, but a round of thick flannel answers every purpose.

Feathers in a clean tick freshen wonderfully for getting wet with summer rain, and then sunning a week. It is much better than the steam scouring, though the scouring is better than no cleaning. Down comforts may be wet with clean water, and hung in the hot sun with manifest betterment. Cotton out of comforts may be washed like feathers, only it needs no bag. When dry, tick or card it afresh, or sun well, and whip hard.

VAGARIES OF THE MACHINE

SEWING machines have moods quite as unmistakable as those of their owners. Sometimes, for no reason in the world, one refuses to sew a particular stuff, no matter how it is presented, thick or thin, single, double, or in gathers. Occasionally it is a very thin stuff which is thus "repudiated." The best remedy is to lay a slip of paper each side the offending seam, slip it under the presser-foot, and sew with steady force. After sewing, the paper can be pulled off.

Sometimes the feed refuses to take hold upon shrunken white goods, though more commonly shrinking is a betterment as regards sewing. In that case, it is well to wet the seams with starch water, and press them dry before trying to sew. It is troublesome, but less so than wrestling with a constricting machine. White goods with much dressing in them, loaded silks, and very woollens are also apt to occasion trouble. For the white stuff, rub the seams with soap; for the silk, use a bit of wax; for the wool, a soaping with waxing afterward. Thus when fault lies unmistakably with the texture. Half the time, at least, when a machine of good make does thus half-way on a strike, it will be found that something is wrong—it wants oil in a vital spot, or the feed is clogged with lint, or a screw or nut is too tight or too loose. Make haste slowly by looking for the flaw and at once remedying it. Time can in no wise be better expended.

HOW TO CLEAN MATTING

TO clean matting, sweep it twice—first with a stiff broom, working along the grain of a straw, then crosswise with a soft broom dipped in warm water, and

dry. Dissolve a handful of salt in a big pail of tepid water, and wash the matting quickly with it, rinsing with clean water. This brightens all sorts of colored matting and also keeps it in a measure from fading.

Very light matting is best washed after sweeping with weak borax-water, on a tub, with cloth wrung out of it. At thing whenever stopped upon a matting floor makes the last state of it much worse than the first. Dust is invariably collected under it, and, once wet, shows through in ugly dark spots. Cover grease spots thickly with prepared chalk wet with turpentine, let the mixture remain for two days, then brush off with a stiff brush. If the spot is very big and very greasy put one-eighth as much washing-soda as chalk, and mix with water to the thickness of putty.

Little-used matting, as in spare chambers, or upper summer rooms, should be swept very clean, then wiped with a cloth wrung out of sweet milk. Do this once a year; it keeps the straw live, and to a degree plant.

BUTTON HOLE ADVICE

A BUTTON-HOLE is a sort of sewing shibboleth. Many seamstresses bungle them horribly. They make the vogue of machine-worked button-holes, which are, however, at their very best, inferior to good hand-work. Good twist, which will neither fray nor kink, is essential to good button-holes. So is clean cutting. A ragged, chewed edge can never be made to look well. Mark the button-hole spaces accurately with chalk—not only the distance apart, but the size. Where choice is possible, cut them to run straight with the threads, either warp or woof, or else on a true bias. Use twist that is fine rather than coarse, and a needle that carries the thread easily, so there shall be no pulling. Begin at the back, fasten the thread firmly, pass it directly along the hole firmly between the left thumb and finger, holding it so a cut edge projects a quarter-inch. Stick the needle through this edge point inward, then take up the thread just behind the eye, and lay it lightly around the point. Draw out the needle, and tighten the stitch so the looped thread covers the cut edge. Repeat, keeping the stitches all the same depth until the other end is reached. There, if the garment is a coat or jacket, set the stitches round in eyelet fashion. For any other garment, let them end square, turn the work, and begin afresh on the other side. Button-holes likely to have heavy wear are better if a double flax-thread is laid along the edge and around the corner, so as to be worked over. By whatever is done, left-handedness

FALL SHIRTWAISTS

ONE can never have too many odd blouses. The newest models show that the jumper or gumpie modes have lost nothing in popularity. Some of the newest have an inside vest filling in the low-cut neck. The introduction of the kimono sleeve figures forcibly in the blouse waist as in all other bodice treatments. The strictly tailor-made waist is coming in for a great deal of attention. These are of heavy linen, madras, fancy shirtings and tique, principally in white. Flannel in plaids, stripes and plain colors is also shown. Pleats and tucks stitched down to the waist or to yoke depth are the usual mode of decoration on these tailored waists. The backs are plain.

No. 5735 shows a modish plain shirt waist developed in butcher's linen that is exceedingly becoming. Deep tucks are taken up at the shoulders, stitched down a short distance, and groups of smaller tucks are arranged on each side the center box-pleat that extends to the waistline. Turn-back cuffs finish the full-length sleeves, while those in shorter length are gathered into narrow bands. Cashmere, wool batiste, French flannel, silk, madras, and linen are all suggested. For 36-inch bust measure 3 yards of material 36 inches wide will be required.

Ladies' Tucked Shirt Waist. No. 5753. Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Another very pretty trim shirt waist in linen is pictured that is simple and comfortable, and at the same time extremely smart. It is made with narrow tucks on each side of the front closing, and a wider tuck that extends over the shoulders to yoke depth in the front, and extending to the waistline in the back. The sleeves may be full length or shorter, the long sleeves finished by deep close-fitting cuffs. Any of the seasonable waistings may be used. For 36 inches bust measure 3 yards of 36-inch material will be required.

Ladies' Shirt Waist. No. 5856. Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Jumper waists are equally effective made from silk and the inexpensive cotton materials, and give opportunity for all kinds of dainty effects in the under-blouse. Rich and effective are the blouses of Cluny or Valenciennes lace under a waist of silk or any of the transparent fabrics. The prettiest are made with Dutch neck and half-length sleeves. Among the smartest and most attractive waists of the season are those in over-blouse effect. A pretty one that will not prove at all difficult for the home dressmaker to fashion is here pictured. The mode closes in the back and is laid in tucks at each side of the front, giving a graceful amount of fullness. The original model from which this design was taken was of sheer white voile, the square-cut neck and circular sleeve caps edged with heavy ecru lace. For 36-inch bust measure 2 3/4 yards of 27-inch material will be required.

Ladies' Fancy Blouse. No. 5858. Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

This pretty waist in surplice style makes one of the latest variations of the fancy blouse. Fine tucks are laid in the upper part of the fronts which are crossed and slightly draped at the waist. This style is particularly becoming to the slender woman, as it tends to give roundness to the figure. The back is plain, except for a few gathers at the waistline. The sleeves may be full length or shorter, as both styles are provided for in the pattern. It is especially suited to the soft, supple fabrics now in use, such as cashmeres, voile, pongee, chiffon, broadcloth, silk, and poplin. For 36-inch bust measure 2 3/4 yards of 36-inch material will be required.

Ladies' Surplice Blouse. No. 5752. Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Patterns may be obtained by carefully filling in the printed
